

LAW REVIEW

“ Where Activism Meets Scholarship ”

Call for Papers Disability Rights: Past, Present and Future.

The University of the District of Columbia Law Review (UDC Law Review) invites article proposals for our next volume topic: Disability Rights: Past, Present and Future.

About our law school: The University of the District of Columbia David A. Clarke School of Law (UDC Law) is the only public interest law school in the nation’s capital. UDC Law is committed to the public interest, using the law to help those in need and reshape our community. Its student body is one of the most diverse in the United States, with significant representation of women, minorities, and older students. The law school is also ranked by U.S. News & World Report as one of the top ten law schools in the nation for clinical training.

About this journal: The UDC Law Review is a student-run periodical that publishes articles of topical legal interest. Our aspiration is to serve the community by raising awareness of important legal issues of social concern. UDC Law Review attempts to embody the theme of community activism and service that resonates in the law school’s clinical programs. Our motto is, Activism Meets Scholarship.

Topics for this volume: UDC Law Review is hosting the 2019 Annual Symposium on disability rights. This symposium is a multidisciplinary event in commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the ADA Amendments Act and will explore disability law and policy. The focus of the symposium is on protecting and improving disability rights in today’s challenging environment and tomorrow’s uncertain future. We invite article proposals that address the following topics:

- The ADAAA: 10 + Years Later
- Disability Beyond the Workplace;
- Disability and Education;
- Disability and the #MeToo Movement;
- Disability and the Military Community;
- Disability, Leave, and Caregiving;
- Disability, Police Interactions, and the Criminal Justice System; and
- The ADA: The Next Ten Years

To be considered for inclusion in Volume 23 of the UDC Law Review, please submit your proposal / abstract to lawreview@udc.edu, with “Attn: Managing Editor – Manuscript Submission” in the subject line. Authors must send their abstract by April 15, 2019. Upon acceptance, the final article draft will be due on July 31, 2019. If you have any questions, please contact our Managing Editor, Maria Suarez (maria.suarez@udc.edu).